EVANGELICAL REVIEW FOR THEOLOGY

Call for Papers

We have developed a call for papers on two pressing issues:

Political theology in and for the Majority World. How does our confession of Jesus' lordship affect our approach to cultural issues (e.g. injustice, extrajudicial killings, relations with unfriendly governments)? How should we live as faithful witnesses in these contexts? Due date: 1 February 2023 for the May 2023 edition.

Digital theology. The digital world is affecting our understanding of the transcendent (God), the nature of the church (ecclesiology), human consciousness (theological anthropology), and the role of technology in our Christian witness. We are dealing with fake news, virtual reality, the power of the Web, and more. We need good theological thinking on these emerging topics! Due date: 1 May 2023 for the August 2023 edition.

We continue to welcome submissions on any topic as we seek to publish stimulating articles 'with clarity and relevance to both the church and the world' (WEA Theological Commission, <https://theology.worldidea.org/>).
